Before hearing about the "no bookbag policy," seniors Jamie Hedrick, Jennifer Oscar, and C Smith and freshmen Andrea Buck and Billy Heron were glad to be back at school.

Kickin' It Off!

Wednesday, August 26, 1998, was the first day at Pocahontas County High School for the 117 freshmen from the Class of 2002. Returning the following day were the 98 seniors, 99 juniors, and the 100 sophomores.

Students found it difficult to get used to the changes in rules. The rule changes included that students could no longer carry bookbags to class, had restricted areas to be in at lunch, and only on certain days would receive an hour lunch break.

Students were anxious to see their friends and talk about good times they had over the summer. Seniors were excited about it being their last year; juniors were happy about becoming upper-classmen; sophomores were pleased to no longer be the new kids; and the freshmen were wondering what the next four years would bring.

The 1998-99 Student Body

Entertaining the student body at the Homecoming pep rally are our friends, "the little people."

These students are chatting in a family group at Teen Institute Camp. Family groups are set up for students to get together and share.

Students at P.C.H.S. have a large variety of activities from which to choose. Many in-school activities take place, such as Spirit Week, Sadie Hawkins, assemblies, and an occasional concert.

Noontime is spent going to clubs, participating in intramurals, doing makeup work, receiving Internet training, or just enjoying time with friends.

Off to a Fresh Start!

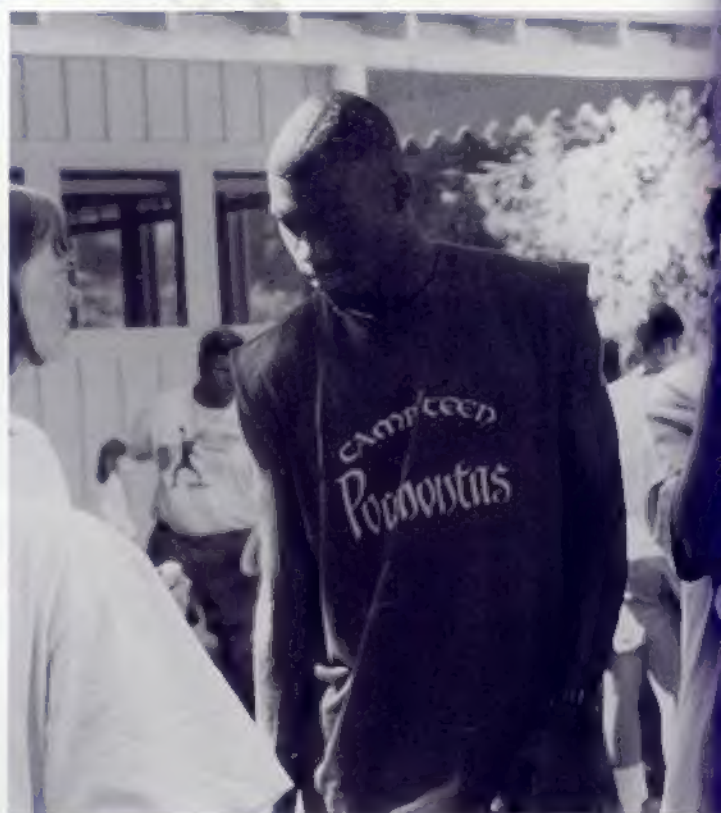

Getting to know each other is a big part of freshman camp. Sophomore De Palmer served as a staff member and made freshmen feel at ease.

On August 23, 1998, 61 freshmen eagerly arrived at Camp. Upperclassmen involved in the T.I. Club helped serve as the youth staff. They helped the freshmen get involved in many activities, such as skits, songs, and games. This challenged the incoming freshmen to get to know each other and feel more at ease when entering the first year of high school.

On the last night of T.I. camp, everybody had a blast dancing the night away, before school was to start a couple days later.

The first day of school for freshmen was August 26, 1998, and the first day for upperclassmen was the 27th. Freshman Orientation was a success, as freshmen participated in a variety of activities. Such activities included introduction to teachers, going through class schedules, playing games, singing songs, and touring the school.

Celebrate in '98!

The annual Spirit Week was held October 13-15 with the theme "Celebrate in '98!"

Tuesday was Farmer/Twin/Grandparent Day; Wednesday, Patriotic/Hawaiian Day and Thursday, Maroon and Gold/Warrior Sports Day. For dressup, juniors placed first, followed by seniors, sophomores and freshmen.

In bulletin board competition, seniors placed first, followed by sophomores, juniors and freshmen. The sheets were displayed on the fence during the Homecoming game.

Another competition was archway decorating. Juniors finished first, seniors second, freshmen third and sophomores last.

The traditional powderpuff football game was played on Thursday. Juniors were victorious, followed by sophomores, with seniors and freshmen tying for third.

The final Spirit Week results found juniors in first place with 83 points, seniors and sophomores tied with 65 points, and freshmen with 46 points

One of the days of Spirit Week was designed to celebrate family by dressing as grandparent, a farmer, or twins. Dressed as twins are sophomores Amanda Thom and Jessica Dunbrack.

Homecoming '98

Calling a play that will hopefully result in a touchdown is Warrior quarterback Clint Johnson. During the second half of the game the Warriors held the Bulldogs to scoring only 6 points.

During the 1998 Homecoming Festivities the Warrior football team played a terrific game against the Tygarts Valley Bulldogs. Even after a tremendous effort, the Warriors lost in overtime 28 to

22. After the disappointing loss, the students traveled up the hill to attend the Homecoming Dance. A nice dance was sponsored by the junior class, and it was enjoyed by all.

Capturing the Moment

The 29th annual Homecoming was held on October 16. The Warrior Band led the court to the field and circled the newly laid track in front of the new press box.

At halftime the band played "You Are So Beautiful" and "My Heart Will Go On" as the 1998 Homecoming Queen and King -- Warren McLaughlin and Jennifer Gum -- were crowned by former King and Queen Chad Baldwin and Ginger Beverage.

Making Music

The first home football game of 1998 with Bath Co. marked the beginning of a new season for the Warrior Marching Band. An auxiliary of 14 flag girls and 6 majorettes were added to the band's 47 playing members. The band attended six football games and three competitions, performing their field show entitled "Movie Mania." They also performed in the Forest Festival and the Autumn Harvest Festival parades and ended a very successful marching season by playing in the Marlinton Christmas Parade on December 4.

The band then moved on to working on concert season and preparing for the Christmas concert, which was held on December 21. Both the Jazz Band and Concert Band performed many beautiful arrangements.

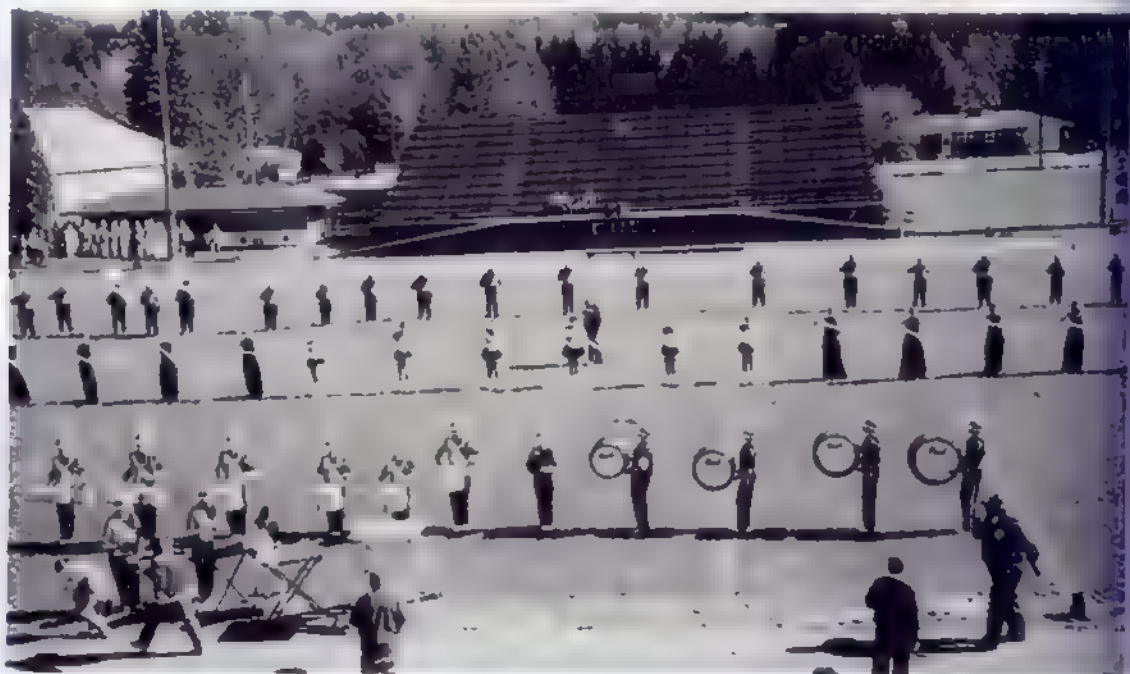

In April, the band performed at statewide ratings in Elkins. The Jazz Band also performed at several school events, including basketball games and open house.

Both bands ended a wonderful season with the annual Spring Concert in May.

The Games People Play!

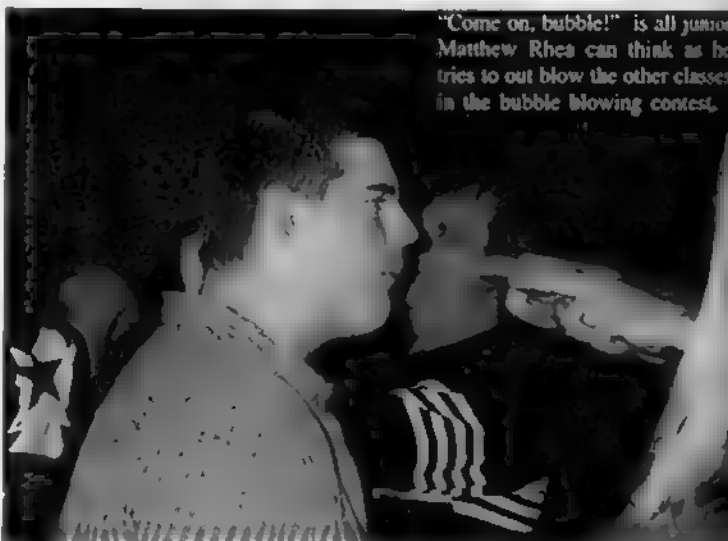

Several entertaining assemblies were held throughout the year, starting with powderpuff football and ending with softball. The annual Sadie Hawkins Day ended in a traditional manner with seniors taking all honors, followed by juniors, sophomores, and freshmen. Although it took awhile for the freshmen to realize that it's just all fun and games, everyone cheered on their classmates and did their best to earn points.

Four other school assemblies occurred. The first was a play, "Honey in the Rock," presented by Theatre West Virginia, followed by the annual Christmas assembly, class volleyball competition, and class softball competition. The Christmas assembly was amusing, as usual, with auditions for next year's Santa and remembrances of past Christmases. In the class volleyball tournament, seniors captured the win. The champs then played our multi-talented and graceful faculty.

Softball competition was held in the spring, with the class winners again playing the faculty. Whatever the occasion, students enjoyed assembling together.

On the last day before Christmas break, the faculty serenaded the student body a few last-minute Christmas tunes.

Future Opportunities

The annual Career Night was held in September. Colleges from around the state and the area were represented, and they provided the students at PCHS with information about their schools. Some of the colleges represented were WVU, Davis and Elkins, Bridgewater, and Concord. The Armed Forces recruiters were there also, to provide information about their programs and benefits. Many students and parents attended Career Night and received valuable information for their futures.

Career Day was combined with Teen Opportunity Day and was held in April. About 40 representatives attended the function to enlighten students on jobs and areas of interest. Mrs. Beverage, coordinator, worked hard to keep everything running smoothly throughout the day. Between the classes held, students were called in groups to the cafeteria and commons area to schedule classes for next year.

Putting "Free Time" to Use

School year 1998-1999 saw many changes taking place, particularly during noontime. For two years, students had enjoyed an hour for lunch and activities and freedom of the school's boundaries, but many fights destroyed that freedom.

At the beginning of the year, limited boundaries were set. At first, noontime was decreased to 30 minutes every day, later to be changed back to an hour 2-3 days per week. Clubs were held two days a week; noontime tutoring sessions took place, along with some class fund-raising, Internet training, Skills Bank tutoring, intramurals, and occasionally homeroom. This was also a good time to use the computer lab, sell year-books, catch up on homework, hold recognition assemblies, get some exercise playing basketball, etc. The new schedule was a struggle for everyone for awhile, but it eventually all worked out for the best.

The commons area is now equipped with five vending machines for students. Sherman Taylor puts his change into the coin slot and chooses the drink for lunch.

Star Light...

The 1999 Junior/Senior Prom was a huge success, being held at Snowshoe's Mountain Lodge Conference Center with the theme "Star Light, Star Bright."

The night began with dinner at Good Time Bobby's. The Junior and Senior Class Presidents gave the welcome, which was followed by a three-course meal.

The students then proceeded to the ballroom and were introduced as they entered. Shortly after, the Prom Court was announced. Junior Prince and Princess were Aaron Huffman and Alison Flegel, and the Senior King and Queen were Michael Lacasse and Emily Morton. The 176 people attending the Prom had the opportunity to dress up and have fun with friends.

The after-prom party was held in the same place, with 61 students attending. Activities included dancing and shooting pool at Good Time Bobby's, as well as swimming at Splash pool. Many prizes were donated by local businesses and given out throughout the night.

Trips & Competitions

Students at PCHS remain very busy with class field trips and club competitions. The trips are fun and educational, and the competitions provide experience to all involved.

Mrs. VanReenen's Travel WV class took a tour of the Greenbrier Hotel and Bunker. A class field trip was taken to NRAO by Mrs. Burns' Chemistry class to study radiowaves.

The Forestry team competed at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, MO. Working together, the team placed first in the nation and came home with several other awards. The FFA also competed in other events.

FBLA members participated in the State Leadership Conference at Charleston, WV. Two of the competitors qualified for the National Leadership Conference.

The VICA team competed statewide in Beckley, WV, and qualified seven members for the National VICA competition.

Members of the International Club competed in the foreign language fair at Bethany College. They received many awards, and junior Samantha Shaw won a $3000 scholarship.

It's The Example We Set

Several seniors left school sometime during the day to "mentor" at different locations. Mr. Burns and Mrs. Vance coordinated the project, making sure everyone was doing what they were supposed to. Employers and students completed weekly reports. Students had to keep up their school work and grades or they were pulled out of mentoring.

Mentoring was a great opportunity for seniors with little or no work experience to see how things really were out in the real world.

The places they mentored varied, depending on what they wanted to do for future job plans. Some traveled to places within the county.

Almost all agreed that mentorship was a good experience.

"Mentoring is a great opportunity. I have had lots of fun, and I recommend it to all students."

Clubs in Action

In 1998-99, students had to face a change in their regular lunch schedule. A club period was added to their hour lunch on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Club period lasted 20 minutes and allowed students to have 30 minutes for lunch. This club period gave students the chance to meet with their clubs during school hours to discuss and plan activities. Clubs were scheduled for different weeks so that students could be involved with several separate clubs.

Many clubs were busy with travelling, hosting dinners, attending competitions, and having overnight gatherings.

Teen Institute members stayed overnight at Snowshoe for a drug prevention program. This program enabled them to travel to the middle schools in the county to talk to the students about drug use.

4-H members sponsored a blood drive through the American Red Cross. They helped the donors and personnel; they also supplied cookies and drinks.

Whatever students are interested in, they should find a club that meets their needs.

Freshman Abigail Hannah puts the finishing touches on a poster for Operation Christmas Child. Many students participated in wrapping presents as gifts to needy children during club period.

GOOD OR BAD?

Have you ever thought about what it would be like to have one (or both) of your parents at school with you every day? A number of PCHS students have parents on the Warrior staff. Most have only one, but two have both. Do you think that would be good or bad?

Most of those students had mixed feelings on the subject. Some students say good, but some could disagree. Besides getting rides to and from school and easy access to money and permission slips, students would rather their parents worked elsewhere. Whether it was not being able to do anything for fear their parents would find out or parents always getting in their business, teachers' kids felt they have a slight disadvantage when it comes to getting away with mischief and privacy.

It's not every year that nine families reside within the same school together. Taking advantage of this opportunity, the children of these families were questioned about the advantages and disadvantages of their situations. Specific comments are listed below.

"I don't like it when people come up to me and tell me that my mom gave them detention or something, cause I really don't care!" — Krissy Keller

"It doesn't bother me either way if my dad works at the same place where I go to school." — Philip Wade

"I like being able to get my forms and such signed if I forget." — Jesse Burns

"My mom butts in all my business at school." — Michael VanReenan

"I think it's cool that my mom works here." — Timothy VanReenan

"I get money, but she knows everything I do, good or bad." -- Matt Rhea "I'm having her in my school because if I need something I can just go ask her for so I can ride to and from school with her." -- Jessica Rhea and a personal math tutor, but I hate it when people tell me how much they dislike my mom!" Megan McGee

The senior year is the one that everyone looks forward to and hopes will go well. Being a senior allows more freedom at choosing classes because the only required class is English.

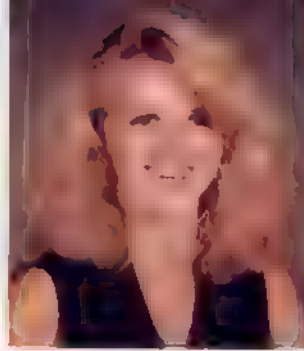

ACT's and SAT's must be taken in order to enter college, and college application must be sent out. Some choose to go straight into the workforce. Many are still very undecided about what their plans are after graduation.

Some seniors choose to leave at the end of the first term, if they have completed all requirements.

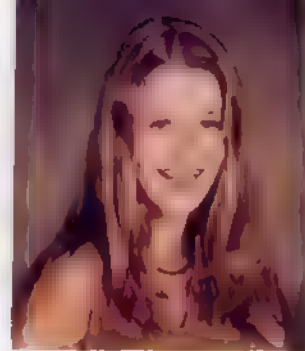

For most, their senior year is very hectic because of all the decisions that must be made. Most seniors are both happy--because it is the year they become an adult--and sad--because friendships are split up when leaving for college.

The 1998-99 junior year was very important for the graduating class of 2000. They had a lot going on, from the Homecoming dance to the Junior-Senior Prom.

Making sure they got their two required classes in was also very important. These two classes were American History II and English.

Organizing Homecoming and Prom and setting up the fundraisers to make them possible were big jobs but were handled well by the class officers, sponsors, and class members working together.

SOPHOMORES

The sophomores, the class of 2001, were happy to no longer be the new kids. They began their year with a more difficult schedule than the previous year because they have more graduation requirements to meet.

The class officers were: Sabrina Tribbett, President; Samantha Mitchell, Vice-President; Deitra Fotten, Treasurer; and Nicole Sauers, Secretary. The sophomores worked on fundraising for the year of their junior prom.

Everyone's freshman year brings forth many exciting new challenges. The 114 students in the class of 2002 came excited and ready to face the challenges.

They began the year with the opportunity to attend the TI-sponsored Freshman Camp. A record of 61 freshmen attended. When coming to school, they had to adjust to block scheduling and the rules and layout of the school.

In September, class officers were elected: Daniel Boggs, President; Andrew Lacasse, Vice President; Susan Wilkins, Secretary; and Tausha Cassell, Treasurer.

Making It Work

The cooks, custodians, and bus drivers play a vital role in the nourishment, upkeep, and transportation of students and the school.

Cooks provide nutritious meals in order for students to do well in school. They make the cafeteria livelier by decorating.

Custodians keep the school looking good and functioning properly.

Bus drivers hold the role of safely getting all students to and from school.

These staff are greatly appreciated!

Senior Shawn Taylor, junior Krisha Johnston, seniors Karis Rataiczak and Jessica Buzzard, junior Shawn White, and seniors Sam Good and Clinton Morris show off their T-shirts after a tie dye lab in ChemCom.

P.C.H.S. gained two staff members in 1998-99--Mrs. Kolonay, Special Ed. teacher, and Ms. Chappell, librarian.

Academics is the most important aspect of school life. Students must carefully plan schedules to cover all required classes and to prepare for future careers. Many seniors completed "mentorships," while freshmen learned about "career clusters" and sophomores "declared a major."

"School-to-Work" is in full swing. Whether preparing for college, a trade school, or a job, students can find classes that will help them be successful.

Changes Taking Place

The Office and Library are two very important places at Pocahontas County High School. Many students and staff see these two places quite often, so the changes taking place in the office and library are a big plus.

The office staff is very important to many people. They make sure everything is up and running on schedule. This group of people includes Principal-Tom Sanders, Vice Principal-Glen Wade, Secretary-Nancy Rexrode, and Accountant-Brenda Dilley.

Another important part of the staff, who help a lot, are Mrs. Beverage and Mr. Rexrode, the two guidance counselors. Making sure people are getting along well at school as well as in everyday life is a big job, but it is handled well by these two.

The library supplies staff and students many choices in books and information. A new librarian joined us this year, Ms. Chappell. She worked hard to make the library a positive place to visit and can be found throughout the day if you need assistance.

Nancy Rexrode, secretary, prepares to send a FAX of the many duties of her job.

Mrs. Beverage and Mr. Rexrode, guidance counselors, take a break from their busy schedules. Mrs. Beverage teaches Intro-to-the-Majors along with assuming her share of regular counselor duties.

Accountant Brenda Dilley seems to be enjoying her job as she puts student grades on permanent records.

Senior Rebekah Hannah concentrates on the book she's reading in the library.

Mr. Sanders listens to Mrs. McGee, math teacher, explain a student problem. He has to try to maintain a balance between teachers, students, and parents.

Mr. Wade practices his skill at doing two things at once, as he takes a phone call from a parent while entering student discipline records into the computer.

Junior Alicia Tallman, library aide, arranges the books on the shelves. Library aides help people find books and restock shelves.

"Learn every skill that you possibly can. . .at some point in your life it will be useful." --Susan Chappell

It's The World We Live In

All students are required to take three Social Studies classes within their four years of high school. The three required classes are American History I and II, and World History. Within the Social Studies classes, the students study government, foreign affairs, and geography. Students have a choice of four teachers: Mr. Stewart, Mrs. Keller, Mr. Barb, and Mrs. Vance.

Along with these three course offerings is ESSH, a combined English/Social Studies class, taught by Mrs. Vance and Mrs. Flegel. Mrs. Vance also teaches Sociology and Enrichment. Students in Enrichment can work at their own pace on chosen projects. Students can also tune into a satellite station and learn classes such as German, Latin, and Calculus, monitored by Mrs. Vance.

Mr. Stewart offers two electives in the split-block. Geography and Government. Mr. Barb assists with Driver Education.

Senior Joel Johnson catches up on the previous assignment before his college professor comes on television with his next assignment for Calculus.

During Mrs. Flegel's first block ESSH Class, freshman Andrew Lacasse reads his story out loud and waits for any constructive criticism from the rest of the class.

Freshman Billy Herold, senior Emily Morton, and freshman Jared Morton work on their German I assignments after talking with their teacher on the telephone to confirm some previous questions.

Taking a Closer Look

English is one of the required subjects at PCHS. One must have at least four credits of English to graduate.

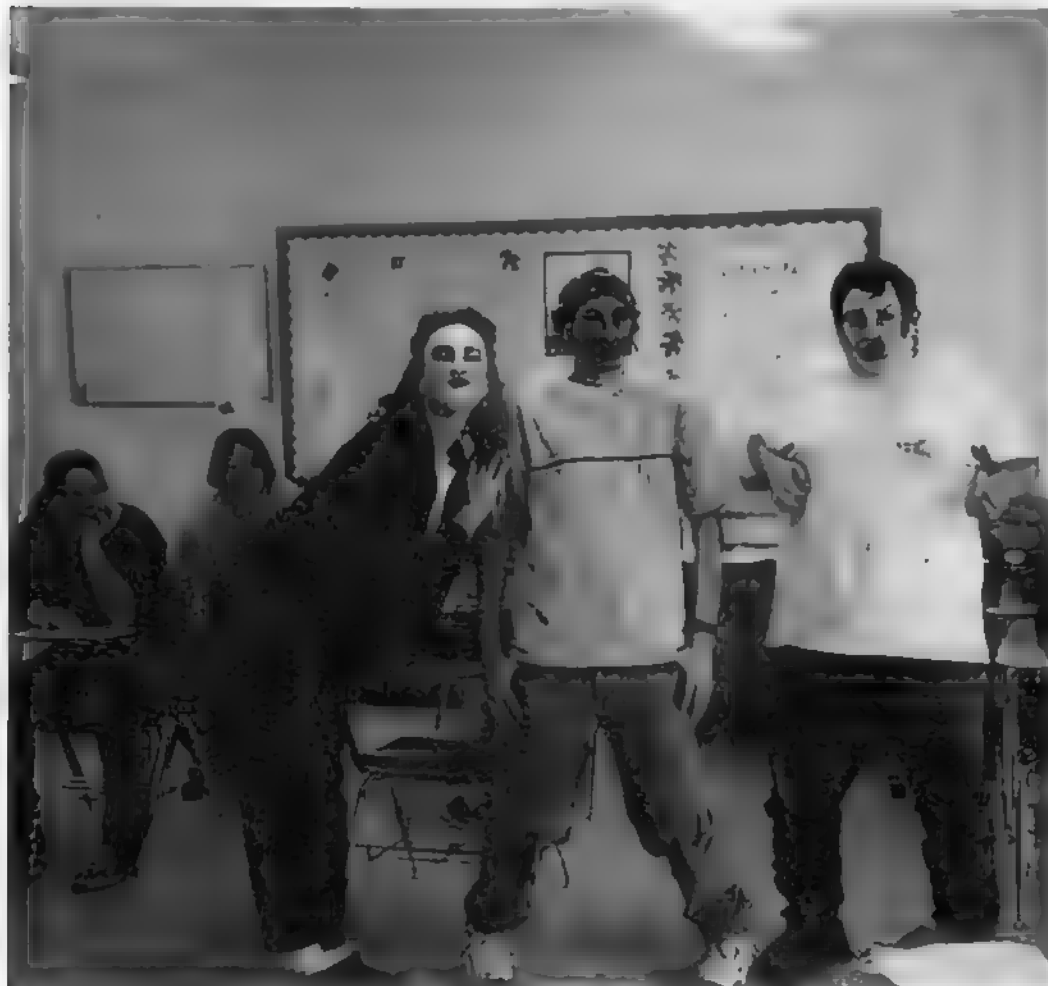

English 9/10 focuses on a review of all language skills, all genres of literature, and introduces research papers.

In English many classes exist. A person can take Advanced Placement, which offers a college-style curriculum and helps students prepare for the National AP Exam. In "regular" English, students study American, British, and world literature. Another option is ESSH, which combines English, Social Studies, and Humanities, and earns two credits. College English and Speech are also offered, for those who want to get a "headstart" on college.

Mythology and Applications in Technology are offered as split block alternatives.

English teachers are Mr. Sheets, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Flegel, and Mrs. VanReenan.

"You all look simply marvelous!" visiting drama instructor Margaret Baker exclaims to Mrs. VanReenan's first block 11/12 English students, senior Michael King and junior Johnny Landis.

Freshman Jared Morton deeply contemplates while he studies his ESSH in Mrs. Vance's first block class.

Working hard in his fourth block Applications in Technology is freshman Chris Morgan. He is decorating the fence with lights for Christmas.

Listening carefully to their College English teacher Mrs. Clark, are seniors Megan McGee and Margaret Clark.

Concentrating on a story assigned in Mr. Sheets's English class is junior Eric Kelley.

More Jacklyn Hollandsworth and freshmen Patti and Sarah Eilers search for subjects on the Internet. The Internet made it easier on students searching.

It's All in the Mixture

Science classes are some of the most challenging and interesting classes offered. It takes hard work and determination to succeed.

The courses offered were Integrated Science 9 & 10, Advanced Biology, Anatomy/Physiology, Physics, Chem-Com, and Chemistry.

Science 9 & 10 focus on topics from the physical life and earth sciences. In Physics students study the earth's structure, geological processes, and natural history. In Anatomy/

Physiology, students learn the structure and functions of the human body. There are many dissections and labs. Chemistry classes cover properties of substances and some of their changes.

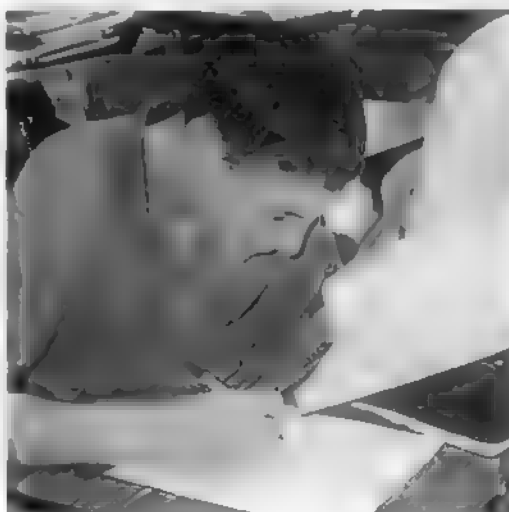

ChemCom looks at the quality of water, foods, chemical resources, and such topics. Advanced Biology is lab-oriented and challenging.

The Science classes were taught by Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Sharpes, and Mrs. White.

Juniors Hollie Hollandsworth and Ginger Henry work on their assignment in Advanced Biology.

Freshman Justin Taylor seems to be working hard on his work in Mrs. White's Integrated Science 9 class.

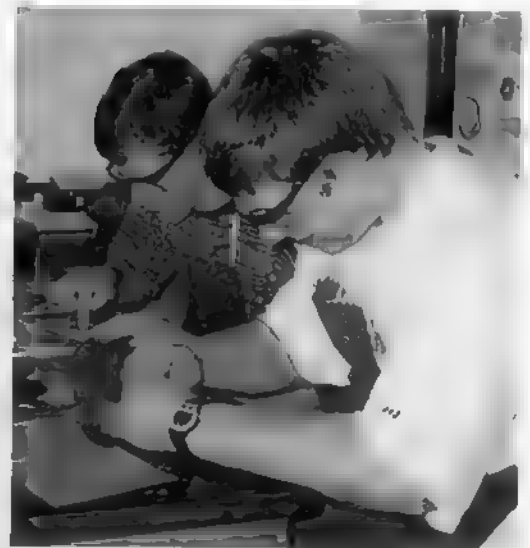

Seniors Eric Kane and Jessica Buzzard work together on a peanut brittle lab in 3rd block ChemCom. by Mrs. Burns.

Senior Sam Good is stirring the peanut brittle as Shawn Taylor holds the torch. This was a 3rd block ChemCom.

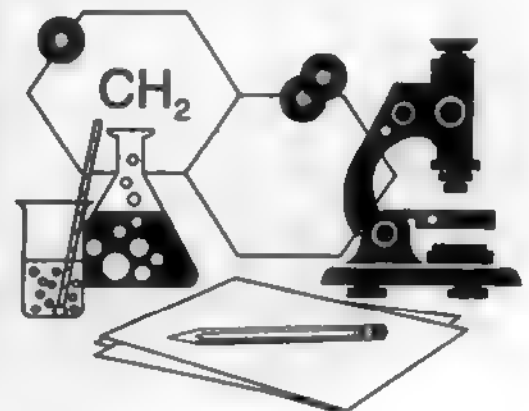

Senior Bobby Sharp and junior Shawn White are calculating the calories of some foods during ChemCom 3rd block

Making Improvements

Some of the most important courses taken during high school to help students succeed in life are math classes. Many different courses are offered at PCHS, including Geometry, Algebra, Trigonometry, Pre-Calculus, and Applied Math. Mathematical skills are required for many jobs and careers. All students are now required to complete three math courses.

Skills Improvement is a class which many students take. This class is very helpful to improve on test scores when it comes to remembering and extending the knowledge of what has been taught before.

Skills Improvement is taught by Mr. Alderman, who instructs and oversees what the students are doing. The time is usually used for working on computers and answering questions the computer brings up. Students improve Math, History, Science, and English skills, which allows the students to become better learners and adults.

Helping out students is Mr. Alderman, while freshman Jacob Dean looks at important papers in the Skills Improvement class.

"Failure is not an option."--Mr. Tupper

Second term brought different students to Skills Improvement. Senior Jessica McLaughlin and freshman Trampus Warner work on the computer to improve their skills.

Mr. Tupper grades some work, sophomore Jessie Underwood and freshman McFalls check over their Algebra work ing to Mr. Tupper is sophomore Bosley while Amanda Johnson or the assignment.

In Geometry class, junior Brooke Taylor listens to Mr. Shunk, while many other students wait patiently for class to begin

Concentrating on a chapter test in Mrs. McGee's Calculus class are seniors Sam Herold, Billy Browning, and Joy Carpenter

During fourth block in Skills Improvement students work on the computer. Concentrating on their work are freshmen Richard Friel and Roy Oscar and sophomore Michael Gaynor.

During Mr. Tupper's Geometry class, freshman Lana Gilardi waits for class to begin

P.E., Health, & Music

Health and Physical Education courses are required for at least one term at PCHS. In P.E. Mrs. Rose teaches students games such as basketball, football, and soccer, as well as dancing, badminton, and gymnastics. The first half of the period students play a more traditional sport, and the second half they play a sport that they are unfamiliar with, such as hockey.

Health is taught by Mrs. Rose and

Mr. Hill. Students are taught how to be healthy and live a healthier lifestyle. Topics such as diseases, anatomy, and birth control are covered.

Choir and guitar are taught by Mr. Hill. In guitar, students are taught the basic skills, such as how to read music and notes.

In choir, students sing and learn how to count rhythms. The choir performs at the Christmas and Spring Concerts.

Trying to find the right pitch in his first period guitar class is Mr. Hill.

Concentrating hard on playing her chord in guitar class is junior Alissa Doss.

Reading in front of the class in first period class is Josh Fitzgerald.

Working hard to get their work done in health class are the students in Mr. Hill's first period class

The choir prepares to sing for the annual Christmas concert

By letting the blood flow to his head while doing a handstand is freshman Joey Schookcraft.

Shooting from the 3-point line during his fourth period class is senior Jody McCall. He is a senior aide for Mrs. Rose

Making the Drive

To increase their knowledge, many students take consumer science and driver education classes. Driver Education is taken in conjunction with Parenting, both being nine-week courses. Driver Education class teaches students to drive carefully and responsibly. The students take turns per day driving the Driver Ed. car with Mrs. Wiley or Mr. Barb. To take Driver Education a student must be 16 before the end of the term.

Consumer Science teaches students to take responsibility of their lives and care for others, which enables them to handle adult life. Parenting students learn to care for children and babies. This class enables students to see what it would be like to care for a young child of their own.

Finishing a worksheet in Parenting are juniors Alissa Doss, Ginger Henry, Hollie Hollandsworth, Matt Gay, and Kellyn Cassell and sophomore Eli Sharp.

Driver Ed. is taken by many students. Sophomore Patrick Saffer waits for the class to begin as he gets his supplies ready.

Getting ready to drive is sophomore Jason Aleksi while Mrs. Wiley assembles her papers.

It's How We Do Business

Business and journalism classes give students a chance to peek into the business world. With classes much like jobs in the "real" world, they achieve certain skills a little ahead of time.

Mrs. Rhea teaches Personal Keyboarding, which is required for all freshmen. Students learn the correct operation of both a typewriter and a computer. In Office Technology, students prepare to directly enter the workforce or to further their education in a business field. Mrs. Rhea also teaches school yearbook, where students learn the skills to actually put the school yearbook together. This year she continued with Internet training, eventually exposing almost every student to the world wide web.

Accounting I and II, Word Processing I and II, and Intro. to Business are taught by Mrs. Stewart. Accounting teaches the process of business record keeping. In word processing, students complete office-style production work, while in Intro. to Business they prepare for the economic roles of consumer, worker, and citizen.

Keying an assignment for advanced word processing are seniors Katrina Beth Goehner, Jaime Smith, and Suzanne Stewart.

Juniors Pam Grimes, Courtney Taylor and Erin Wimer finish a balance sheet in their first block accounting class.

Freshmen Janet Biggs and Holly Strader take turns printing their computer assignment in their first block keyboarding class. Personal keyboarding is a requirement, along with Intro. to the Majors, for all freshmen.

From the Forest to the Farm

Agriculture Production and Forestry are two very useful classes offered at Pocahontas County High School. Agriculture Production does not only consist of book work, but a person also has a chance to do hands-on work.

Both classes give one a chance to explore new places and topics. In 1998 the Forestry team participated in five competitions. Perhaps the most important competition was National FFA, held in Kansas City. The team placed first in the National Forestry competition.

Agriculture Production also went on a couple of trips. The livestock team placed 2nd and the poultry team took 5th at WVU. At Potomac State College, PCHS took first place in forestry, livestock, and poultry competitions.

Susan Wilkins, freshman, is working hard to finish sanding on her chopping board in her 2nd period Production class.

Jamie Kellison, sophomore, prepares his chainsaw to cut up a tree in Forestry I.

Junior Alicia Dean watches as sophomore Jeremy Moore adjusts the oxygen and acetylene levels for the torch in Ag Production I.

From All Angles

Two very productive vocational classes are carpentry and welding. The teachers for these classes are Mr. Gibson and Mr. Thompson, respectively.

The carpentry students work on various projects around the school and in the communities. Two special projects were building the baseball dugouts on the new field and installing the dust collector in the carpentry shop.

In welding the students work on piecing metals together and working with different machinery. Welding classes consist of Intro. to Welding and Welding I and II. Each class helps the students work up to certification by the State of West Virginia and the American Welding Society.

These two vocational classes give the students skills for either continuing to study welding or carpentry in college or joining the work force directly after high school.

It's How We Express Ourselves

Many exciting events took place in art and foreign language. French students took a trip to an art exhibit by a French painter, Marc Chagall. They also went to Lewisburg to see a French play, "Les Miserables." Some French students planned a summer trip to the Carribean.

The International Club, which includes students interested in any foreign language, went to Lewisburg to visit the Tibetan Monks and learn about that unique culture.

The Art Department, which includes Art 1-6 and independent studies, had an interesting year. The art council provided enough money for famous painter, Charlie Harper, to come visit the art students, which was a real treat. Many participated in the art shows, including the spring art show held at P.C.H.S. and the Women's Club art show, where cash awards were given.

Senior Scottie Moore is answering a question about Jessica Sheets. Scottie is helping teach French 1 and fourth block.

During club period, senior Sarah Perry takes time out of her busy schedule to "throw a pot" in Art Guild. "Throwing pottery takes a lot of skill and concentration. I've been told it takes seven years to get where you truly want in pottery."

Seniors Jaime Smith, Amanda Shinnaberry, and Beth Mowbray are hanging up their poems that were assigned in Spanish class.

Junior Jonathan Smith is dusting off his finished collage, Transcending Oblivion, to be put in the showcase while thinking, "Why is everybody trying to understand art? Why not try and understand the song of a bird?"

Juniors Amy Anderson and Cathy Burns are finishing up an activity in French IV.

"The loft or the basement--is that enough for division and adaptation?"--Mrs. Leary Mrs. Leary retired after many years of service to Pocahontas County and will be greatly missed

P.C.H.S. art students were very excited to have famous painter, Charlie Harper, visit third block art class to show slides of his works. The students enjoyed Harper's unique paintings and cute puns.

After Charlie Harper came to visit P.C.H.S. art students, the class was given a similar assignment to Harper's paintings. The class had to create an animal using only geometric shapes. Sisters Kim and Valene McLaughlin work hard on painting their animals

After winning in sectionals, sophomore Christina Holmire takes her turn at cutting down the net

It's How We Play The Game

Huddling around their coach, Tom Jones, are the 1999 baseball team. They had a very difficult season but did not ever give up.

P.C.H.S. offers equal opportunities in sports for girls and boys. Available are football, volleyball, soccer, cheerleading, basketball, track, and baseball. Some students choose to be involved in more than one sport, which requires them to stay after school most of the year.

Students must maintain a GPA of at least 2.0 to be eligible to participate. Doing well in sports has given several students college scholarships.

In sports one must learn how to take defeat as well as victory.

Making the Best of It!

In their first year of Single A competition, the Warrior football team had a very hard-fought but disappointing season.
They basically played the same schedule as in their previous AA years. Although their 0-10 record doesn't show it, the Warrior football team played well. The competition was strong and the schedule was tough, but the guys managed to hang in there.

The team captains, Bobby Sharp,
Shawn Taylor, and Clayton Seldomridge, kept high attitudes toward their problems and led the team well. The offense was led by Clayton, who had 884 yards rushing for the year.

The Homecoming game proved to be their best of the season. The game with Tygarts Valley went into overtime with a tie at 22. The guys played their best and came close, but the Bulldogs were successful at scoring, and the game ended with a final score of 22 to 28.

The Warriors were plagued by penalties throughout the season, racking up an unbelievable 611 1/2 yards lost in penalties.

Both Coach Barb and Assistant Coach Buzzard decided to step down at the end of the season. The year had been tough, but both coaches managed the Warrior football team well and will be greatly missed.

It's How You Play the Court!

The 1998 Lady Warrior Volleyball team had a difficult season. The varsity team played hard but won only one game. J.V. had only two separate games and won neither.

Before the season began, Varsity and Junior Varsity teams were chosen. Captains were seniors Amanda Bronson, Katrina Beth Goehner, Jennifer Miller, and Hope May. Caroline Sharp moved from Assistant to Head Coach.

The freshmen and new players had to learn the techniques, while the experienced players had to be refreshed. The team came together and never gave up. With the skills learned, the returning players should do well.

To play volleyball, one must learn control in spiking, serving, setting, and bumping the ball. The most important part of learning volleyball is to talk to each other out on the floor. Teamwork plays a big part.

In sectionals, the Lady Warriors played against Pendleton County. The first match was lost 15-2, second lost 15-1, third won 16-14, and fourth lost 15-2.

Looking surprised by a call from the referee is senior Katrina Beth Goehner

Coach Sharp tries to encourage the team to do their best. She did not downgrade the girls for making mistakes because they knew what they had done wrong

Making the Goals!

The Warrior Boys Soccer team of 1998 faced many tough challenges. Due to the loss of 14 seniors from the previous year, the team faced a rebuilding season. Surprisingly, the team had a better regular season than the year before, giving them a final 3-7-1 record.

Their new coach, Phil Rolleston, is very proud of the boys' ability to work together as a team.

The defense was led by Captain Sam Herold and Joel Johnson. Midfield was led by Michael Lacasse, while Matt Condon led the offense.

The Warrior Soccer team showed much skill during their season and did not back down from a challenge. They showed excellent sportsmanship and strong, winning attitudes through it all, receiving not a single penalty card all season!

It's The Commitment We Make!

The 1998-1999 boys basketball season was a very hard-fought, but disappointing, one. The Varsity team, coached by Bob Sheets, finished their season with a 5-16 record.

While many PCHS students were enjoying the winter holidays and random snow days, the 18 dedicated young men were either in the gym or on the road, playing their hearts out. Even though their record doesn't show it, the Warrior team was full of determined and skillful players.

The Warrior JV team, coached by Mike Shank, also played their hardest but came up short on several occasions, finishing their season with a 3-11 record.

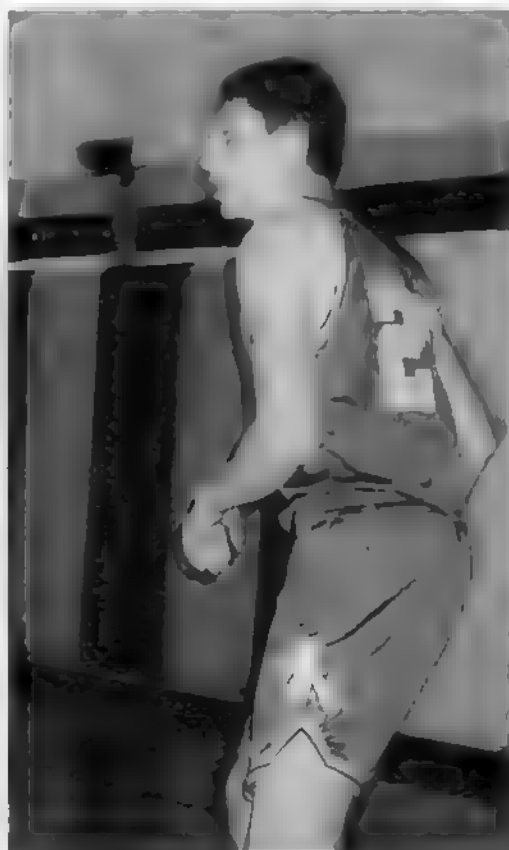

The Warriors were defeated by Tygarts Valley in the first game of the sectionals at Elkins High School. They will miss the leadership of the three seniors, Josh Carpenter, Bobby Sharp, and Jared Cain, but look forward to next year when several talented team members will return.

It's The Excitement We Create!

The 1998-99 girls basketball team had a great season, ranking among the top ten single A teams in the state and finishing with a 16-7 record. They had many accomplishments, including being sectional champions.

They participated in several tournaments, the first being at Tygarts Valley, where the girls placed first. Christina Holstine broke the school record for most steals in a game. All tournament players were Alison Flegel, Hope May, and Kim McLaughlin.

In the Pit Row Classic, they placed fourth.

McLaughlin was All-Tournament. At the Snowshoe Mountain Classic, held at PCHS, the girls placed second. Flegel and Holstine were All-Tournament.

McLaughlin also set a school record for 3-point goals in a season with 52.

The team was Coalfield Conference champions. Three girls received All-State Honors. McLaughlin was named Special Honorable Mention, and Holstine and Flegel were Honorable Mention.

The JV team also had a good season, with a 10-4 record.

It's How We Play The Field

The 1999 Warrior Baseball team worked very hard in hopes of bringing home a better record than last year. Unfortunately, winning was not in the game plan. Under the direction of newcomer Coach Tom Jones, the team was in for a long and vigorous season. With only twelve players, the whole team had to "play the field" in order to find their most constructive position.

Practice for the Warriors began early in March, with bad weather and late snow flurries keeping them locked inside for the first couple of weeks. But once the team got outside to practice, you could see great improvement in their batting game.

At the end of the much improved, but frustrating, season came the playoffs against Tygarts Valley. In spite of a great effort in the first game, the Warriors were eliminated after two games in the double-elimination tourney. Losing four key players to graduation, the Warriors will return with dedication, determination, and high hopes in bringing home a better record next year.

It's How We Show Our Spirit!

Cheerleading is another sport offered at PCHS. Cheerleading takes a lot of skill, enthusiasm, and talent, and the cheerleaders tried hard to make things work throughout the year.

The head cheerleader for football was senior Jennifer Gum; for basketball, sophomore Jessica Dunbrack.

Under the direction of a new coach, the girls cheered for all football games and both girls and boys home basketball games, as well as tournaments for both.

Having new cheers to learn, cheering for so many games, and the fundraising required to support a squad made for a busy schedule.

It takes a lot of time and dedication to be a cheerleader, and the cheerleaders deserve more respect than what is given to them.

At the beginning of a basketball game against Pendleton County the cheerleaders start the game off with the "jumpball" cheer.

Toward the Mark!

Both PCHS track teams started practice in March, running inside for only a couple of weeks. They excitedly moved practice down onto the new track and began preparation for the upcoming track meets. The members faced quite a rebuilding season from the loss of the many excellent senior runners of the previous team. However, freshman track members quickly caught on with help from the other runners, and everyone showed great competitive ability and spirit.

Track members had a very busy season, attending eight track meets within the state. Competition was tough, but everyone had fun and kept at it, gaining strength, speed, and endurance. Hard work resulted in nine girls and six boys qualifying for the State Track Meet at Charleston. Although no one placed at the top in the meet, everyone enjoyed themselves and significantly improved their overall times.

PCHS will begin to host some track meets in the future with the use of the new track and equipment.

Our Final Effort

The 1998-99 athletic season was filled with young talent, great personalities, and enthusiasm.

Seniors are a huge chunk of a team's success. They are expected to encourage, train, and provide leadership and guidance to underclassmen.

Throughout their high school careers, seniors must learn to work together and support each other in order to portray and establish winning seasons as well as winning attitudes.

Seniors not only participated, but supported their own teams along with other teams during the year. But all good things must come to an end, including high school athletic careers.

Seniors Shanna McComb, Krissy Keller, Emily Morton, and Sarah Perry have been there from the start of girls soccer at PCHS.

Kicking up their heels after a great season are senior girls basketball players Kristen Bennett, Kim McLaughlin, Hope May and Amanda Bronson.

Taking a little seriousness out of the game are senior football players Jacob Joey Sacra, Bobby Sharp, Shawn Taylor, Sam Good, and Eric Ricotta.

In their final year of baseball are seniors Sherman Taylor, Joey Sacra, Justin Vandevander, and Clinton Morris.

Together for the last time are senior football cheerleaders Angela Bussard, Jennifer Gum, and Marlana Friel.

Happy to be leaving are senior ball players Jared Cain, Bobby and Josh Carpenter.

Showing off their spirit and sense of humor the senior track members take a break from practice. Eric Ricottilli, Emily Morton, Michael Lacasse, Jennifer Deputy, Joel Johnson, Krissy Keller, Jared Cain, Margaret Clark, and Hope May.

Seniors Jennifer Miller, Hope May, Amanda Bronson, and Katrina Goehner have all played volleyball throughout their entire high school careers.

Happy to be spending his final day at PCHS
Seth Ferrell.

Making The Final Salute

The graduation exercises for the class of 1999 were held Saturday, June 5, 1999, at 2 p.m.

The prelude, played by Angela Weadon, brought the graduates into the gymnasium, led by the Junior Marshals, Aaron Huffman and Eric Kelley. Gold graduation gowns were worn by the ladies, and maroon gowns by the gentlemen.

Sarah Perry gave the Address of Welcome. Valedictorian Margaret Clark gave a brilliant speech to fellow classmates and guests. Cosalutatorians, Amanda Shinaberry and Josh Carpenter, also spoke to their graduating class. Rosemary Hofer, a PCHS graduate from the class of 1972, was the special guest speaker.

Closing remarks were made by Shanna McComb. The ceremony ended with the receiving of diplomas. The seniors were then ready to say good-bye to friends and the school's faculty and staff.

May the class of 1999 be the successors of their dreams and hopes and go where the roads lead them in life.

SAYING GOODBYE!

Taking a short break from Mr. Gibson's Building Construction II Class are senior Justin Withrow and juniors Tommy Vandevender, Matt White, and Jason Alderman.

"I would like to thank all students past and present for so many, many memories... I have been truly blessed to have gotten to meet and know so many wonderful students over the past 20+ years and will miss the daily contact we have shared for so long. I do intend to keep in touch; so until we next cross paths. Best Wishes!" --Mr. Wade Finishing a project during the last week of school are students in Mr. Thompson's welding class, juniors Jason Reed and Shawn White and senior Curtis Phillips.

As the school days draw to the end, Superintendent Phares has a heart-to-heart discussion with the students. He spoke on the issues of determination and school safety.

At work on end-of-the-year assignments are freshman Melissa Walton and sophomore Jennifer Sheets in Mr. Alderman's Skills Improvement class. This class helps improve Basic Skills.
